It has been a great experience publishing our research paper titled “Cognitive AI-Driven Navigation with Bio-Inspired Learning Models for Autonomous Drone” in the International Journal of Applied Mathematics, Computational Science and Systems Engineering (WSEAS).

The review and publication process was highly professional, transparent, and efficient. The editorial team maintained excellent communication throughout, providing constructive feedback that strengthened the quality and clarity of our manuscript. The timely peer-review process and the academic rigor of the journal reflect WSEAS’s commitment to maintaining high research standards.

We sincerely appreciate the journal’s focus on promoting innovative, interdisciplinary research in computational intelligence and systems engineering. Being part of this publication has been a rewarding experience for our entire research team, and we look forward to contributing further to WSEAS journals in the future.
